MVO1: I stayed loyal to me missus. She left me. I stayed loyal to me best mate. He left with me missus. I stayed loyal to me work. They downsized me.

MUSIC: A sanctimonious orchestral rendition of the chorus from "Waltzing Matilda" swells up in the background.

MVO1: So what did I do? I stayed strong, I stayed true. I stayed loyal to Oz Lotto. And now I've got a truckload of cash. So me missus, me mate, and me work, they can all get -

FX: CENSORED BLEEP

MVO2: Oz Lotto's $2 million jackpot. It pays to stay loyal.

FVO: (extremely coarse, country Australian accent, middle aged woman's voice who sounds like she's smoked her whole life)

Sexy, Voluptuous, Mature Female, seeking Young Athletic Playmate, aged 18-21. Must be toned, muscular, and have plenty of stamina.

Must have blue eyes. Blond hair. Tanned skin. A surfer's butt. BIG HANDS
And plenty of stamina.

Must also be able to cook, clean, scrub tobacco stains off the kitchen roof.
And did I mention stamina?

MVO: This week's Oz Lotto has jackpotted at $2 million. With a truckload of cash, you could afford to be choosy too.

MVO1: If I had a truckload of cash, I'd quit me job and spend me life working for charity. I'd make the world a better place.

FVO: No you wouldn't.

MVO1: Hmm. Well, I'd buy me mum a waterfront mansion - with a tennis court and a swimming pool, and everything.

FVO: No you wouldn't.

MVO1: Ahh, I'd buy me dad a V8 with leather seats and mag wheels.

FVO: You would not.

MVO1: And I'd get granddad a colour tellie.

FVO: No. You. Wouldn't.

MVO2: This week's Oz Lotto has jackpotted at $2 million. Win a truckload of cash - and keep it.

FVO: Would you get me anything?

MVO1: Nah, probably not.
